

THE MIRROR

"On the eve of wedding in 1978, Shay Garrett peers into the antique mirror in her family's longtime home, the famous Victorian Gingerbread House on Pearl Street in Boulder, Colorado, and falls unconscious only to wake in the body of her own grandmother Brandy on the eve of her wedding--in 1900. The virginal Brandy, in turn, awakes in Shay's body to discover herself pregnant. What follows is a fascinating look at how two women--and their families--cope with this strange situation."--Back cover.

Reader's Opinions

A friend of mine recommended this book to me, and I'm glad she did. "The Mirror" was very well written. The author included descriptions of places, people, and times in a facinating way. The time setting for "The Mirror" went from 1900 through 1978. The author described the differences in society from the eras very well. The Mirror...

This is perhaps my favorite book of all time. I discovered it through rather unusual circumstances. While working for an eye doctor in Boulder, Colorado, I met the author who was a patient of ours. When I learned that she was a published author, I started searching used book stores for some of her works and came across a first edition...
